

AN IDEAL CLUB GLIDER...

... THE SCHWEIZER "2-22"

If you cannot own a glider of your own right now, the next best thing is to organize, or join a Glider Club . . . Much of the success of any Gliding Club depends on the type of glider chosen. Since much of the flight activity is flight training, a glider primarily for flight instruction is naturally the best choice.

The all metal, two-place, SGU 2-22 is an excellent craft for training or sport flying. Being short in span it is far more maneuverable than the super performance sailplane types. This fact coupled with its low stalling speed and fine aerodynamic qualities makes it especially suited for use by inexperienced persons. Although fine for beginners, the 2-22 is by no means inferior in performance. In fact, it is well known as the holder of the present American two-place duration record of over ten hours.
